ultrafast imaging of electronic relaxation in n-propylbenzene: direct observation of intermediate state ... the ultrafast dynamics the s 2 state in n-propylbenzene has been investigated. the intermediate state for the deactivation of the s 2 state is evidenced. an ultrafast internal conversion on 50 fs from the s 2-to-s 1 state is observed. the time constant of 1.23 ( $\pm 0.2$ ) ps is determined for ... towards imaging of ultrafast molecular dynamics using fcls - towards imaging of ultrafast molecular dynamics using fcls ... ultrafast dynamics. one of the main driving forces behind the development of high flux x-ray fcls has been the possibility of performing diffractive imaging of small objects, such as isolated bio-molecules. such experiments have already been successfully applied to nano-objects and -crystals [13-15] as well as to a mimivirus [16 ... correction: highlights from faraday discussion 194 ... - the title of this conference report incorrectly refers to the conference 'ultrafast imaging of photochemical dynamics' as 'faraday discussion 193'. as shown herein, this should be corrected to 'faraday discussion 194'. dynamics of chemical and photochemical reactions in solution - dynamics of chemical and photochemical reactions in solution greg t. dunning, stephanie j. harris, fawzi abou-chahine, daniel murdock, david r. glowacki, jeremy n. imaging electronic excitation of no by ultrafast laser ... - ultrafast electron dynamics associated with nonadiabatic transitions in photochemical reactions [1,2] and attosecond dynamics of electron wave packets [3,4]. in addition to conventional pump-probe ... real-time time-frequency two-dimensional imaging of ... - photochemical reaction dynamics would be to instantly remove or excite an electron in a complex molecule and subsequently follow how the initial photoexcitation triggers the electron dynamics, which resolves into nuclear dynamics and bond breaking. this perspective outlines how emerging x-ray spectroscopic techniques can be applied to accomplish this challenge and to follow the dynamics of ... broadband pump-probe imaging spectroscopy applicable to ... - various spectroscopic techniques to reveal the ultrafast dynamics of materials have been developed since the invention of ultrashort-pulsed lasers. one of the most common techniques is pump-probe spectroscopy, which reveals various ultrafast phenomena such as excited-state dynamics, phonon dynamics, and photochemical reactions.1-5) this technique, however, requires that the pump-probe ...
